In Memory of Corporal WILLIAM PERCIVAL COX 57180, 106th Field Coy., Royal Engineers Born in Faringdon, who died, age 19, on 18 November 1915

Son of Albert Edward and Elizabeth Cox, of King's Farm, Longcot, Berks. Remembered with honour

LONDON RIFLE BRIGADE CEMETERY

Commemorated in perpetuity by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission

London Rifle Brigade Cemetery is located 15 km south of Ieper town centre.

The commune of Ploegsteert remained under Allied occupation for much of the First World War, but was in German hands from 10 April to 29 September 1918.

London Rifle Brigade Cemetery was begun by units of the 4th Division in December 1914, and used by fighting units and field ambulances until March 1918; some German burials were made in April and May.

The cemetery owes its name to the 22 burials of the London Rifle Brigade (which then belonged to the 4th Division) in Plot III, made in January, February and March 1915.

The cemetery now contains 335 Commonwealth and 18 German burials of the First World War. In June 1927, Lieut.-General Sir H.F.M. Wilson, late G.O.C. 4th Division, unveiled a tablet set in the wall at the north corner of the cemetery, commemorating the dedication of the cemetery by the Bishop of London on Easter Day 1915, and the sacrifice of 91 officers and 1,831 other ranks of the regiment during the war.

The cemetery was designed by Charles Holden.